

Year 12 students helping the Homeless

kreinhold | 9th Sep 2015 2:10 PM

Yr 12 CAFS students donate the money to go towards Street Swags for local people in need.

Year 12 students studying the Community and Family Studies course at Bishop Druitt College have managed to find time to raise money for a much needed cause.

As part of the course students look at different groups in the community, and whilst looking more in depth at the Homeless, they realised the importance of street swags to this group.

This small class thought they could help and had a cake stall at school to raise funds.

Recently the class visited the Coffs Harbour Community Village and gave the money raised to buy street swags for Homeless people in the area.

ADVERTISEMENT

JUST IN

Wallabies have last laugh over critics with demolition of Wales an hour ago

Irish skipper pays tribute to Chicago fans after NZ upset an hour ago

OOPS: Police lose taser after scuffle with kids an hour ago

Supercar drivers critical of Auckland race format 2 hours ago

Mel Gibson's age difference concerns 2 hours ago

Seebohm to spearhead squad for world short-course titles 2 hours ago